```
import csv
import math

Read CSV
data = []

with open("students_kmeans.csv") as file:
    reader = csv.reader(file)
    next(reader)

    for row in reader:
        data.append([float(row[1]), float(row[2])])

Initial centroids
centroids = [[2, 45], [6, 65], [10, 90]]

Repeat 5 times
for _ in range(5):

    clusters = [[], [], []]

    # Assign each point to nearest centroid
    for point in data:
        distances = []

        for center in centroids:
            d = math.sqrt((point[0]-center[0])2 + (point[1]-center[1])2)
            distances.append(d)

        cluster = distances.index(min(distances))
        clusters[cluster].append(point)
```

```
    # Calculate new centroids
    for i in range(3):
        if clusters[i]:
            x = sum(p[0] for p in clusters[i]) / len(clusters[i]) y = sum(p[1] for p in clusters[i]) / len(clusters[i]) centroids[i] = [x, y]

Display results
for i in range(3):
    print("Cluster", i + 1)
    print(clusters[i])
    print("Centroid:", centroids[i])
```